Chicanos Por La Causa Applauds Immigration Policy Change

Phoenix — Chicanos Por la Causa, Inc. (CPLC) commends the decision of President Obama of implementing a common-sense policy change that will make our immigration system fairer and smarter.

Immigration courts will now focus on deporting people who have been convicted of crimes or who pose a security risk. This means that the courts will focus less on "low-priority" cases like young people who were brought here as small children and know no other home or veterans and military spouses.

"This is a smart, strategic change that will make a difference by making our country safer," said Edmundo Hidalgo, President and CEO of CPLC. "We call upon to congress to build on this momentum and resume discussions for comprehensive change," continued Hidalgo.

Comprehensive immigration reform requires Congress to act. CPLC asks that the community contact their congressman and request that they work to fix our broken immigration system.
